Editorial Review

From Booklist

In Needle and Thread, the second book in the Main Street series, Flora and Ruby begin to feel more at home in Camden Falls. Ruby, with the lead in a school play, seems to be getting over her parents' death, though the holidays bring challenges for both girls and their grandmother as they try to forge a new life. Freed of some of the setup in the first book, this story delves more easily into the sisters' new lives, and although the girls never seem as grief stricken as one might expect, the novel does touch on the different ways children deal with loss. Readers drawn by the books' quiet details will be pleased that more titles in the series are on the way. Cooper, Ilene

Autumn in Camden Falls brings friendship, adventure, and change to the lives of Flora and Ruby. While younger sister Ruby faces each new situation with gusto, Flora is more analytical, always aware of the cataclysmic family circumstances that have taken place earlier. Fifth grade brings a much longed for teacher and the vicissitudes of classmates; Halloween brings costuming projects and trick-or-treating plans; and Thanksgiving brings the opportunity to celebrate the family holiday with a new and welcoming tradition. Ariadne Meyers gives personality to each of the girls and brings warmth to grandmother Minn. Characters abound--friends Nikki and Olivia and their family members, row house neighbors, fabric store helpers and customers. All have distinctive voices that enable listeners to differentiate them and follow their situations. A.R. © AudioFile 2007, Portland, Maine-- Copyright © AudioFile, Portland, Maine
