Biology for the Informed Citizen By Donna M. Bozzone, Douglas S. Green

With Biology for the Informed Citizen, students connect the concepts of biology to the consequences of biology. Authors Donna M. Bozzone and Douglas S. Green teach the concepts of biology, evolution, and the process of science so that students can apply their knowledge as informed consumers and users of scientific information.

Cases: An engaging biological issue opens every chapter and is revisited throughout

Concepts: Foundational biological ideas are introduced within the context of important cultural and social issues

Consequences: The concepts and consequences of biology are connected in order to help students make informed decisions about biological issues

Biology for the Informed Citizen is available with or without chapters 11-15 on physiology. Both versions allow instructors to cover the chapters and topics in the order that they choose.

Editorial Review

Review

"A wholly stimulating approach to the subject of biology."--Gerald Posner, Broward College

"An excellent text. The relevant examples make this text a very good approach."--Fran Norflus, Clayton State University

"Well written, engaging, visually stimulating...The overall approach and the extra features are all better than my current text [Campbell]."--Jennifer Wiatrowski, Pasco-Hernando Community College

"This text promises to be one of the best nonmajors texts I've seen in the last few years."--Erik P. Scully, Towson University

"The greatest strength of Bozzone is the level at which it is written--very easy for students to comprehend. The overall presentation is extremely user friendly and inviting."--Lisa Bryant, Arkansas State University
